

As a country, we need to do everything we can to ensure that our media remains a diverse group of different opinions. Allowing the majority of the media to be owned by a few companies would do a great disservice to the American people and to its ideal of a free press